OCT 2020

MIRROR

A welcoming space that made events seem like a backyard get-together, not a formal venue. A little oasis in the middle of everything.

JAN 2024

WHAT TO PRUNE

- Budget for externally led events. Just provide the space.
- ↳ Volunteer time for these events. Lean on the event organizers.

WHAT'S IT 4?

Provide a community gathering space in this era of digital distraction, social isolation, scary creeping authoritarianism, and on and on.

TEMPERANCE ALLEY

OCT 2020

one of the few remaining third places. An experimental community space and garden. Radical

→ Pruning: ?? Refreshments/snacks @ events

- experimental events! knowledge source. Radical space.

What was Temperance Alley garden?

A DREAM This garden is what I imagined for myself when I dreamed up what I wanted my DC life to be when I moved here in 2020.

What to prune??

anything could be more off donation based, but?? how to choose?

WHAT'S IT 4?

lasting impact!!! bonds that transcend the garden itself

generating with the garden regulates a path forward that anyone interested can support and work toward collectively

- 1) I only found in Spring '23. I often describe it as event space first, then community garden - and not the buy-a-plot kind. I also say it's my favorite thing on Earth and mention that I don't know my garden friends' day jobs.
- 2) We could obv. "prune" the partner events, I guess? Any event w/ food could become a potluck. I, for one, would participate in a monthly opt-in tip/fee/donation or join a "friends of the garden" group to fund. By some, so all can enjoy.
- 3) What's it for? Being a model for other examples of projects like this (temporary, or corporation-owned-community-run, etc). Do people still say POPOS? (Privately Owned Public Open Spaces)

• TAG was a gathering space. Regardless of event, or attendance numbers, every event served to connect people and I'm grateful for the bonds I've created. I want to see an event that doesn't bring in people who come to other events and doesn't serve a connection between the performers and audience.

What Was

A third space people rarely find. Lovely garden with open arms to anything that builds community.

Pruning

couldn't say, too new

What's it For

- setting up seven five, or inspiring the next garden
- Protect the space
- Continue as a suburban living room
